

Bio for Nicholas Rhodes, PhD

Director of Research & Development

Dr. Rhodes is the Director of Research and Development at Paradigm Labs. He is in the process of studying for his boards so that he can serve as a Laboratory Director.

Dr. Rhodes has significant interdisciplinary education. He has a PhD in Chemistry, with a concentration on bioinorganic chemistry and a Postdoctoral Research Fellowship in analytical biochemistry with a concentration in protein chemistry.

Dr. Rhodes also has extensive practical experience with LC and GC mass spectrometry, drug toxicology, capillary electrophoresis, protein chemistry, culturing mammalian cells, BSL-2, radioactive labeling, and toxicological studies.

Dr. Rhodes is working on several exciting research projects for Paradigm, concentrating on issues tied to testing CBD and Ketamine.

